Amy McCrae Kessler Re-elected to the Board of Directors of the American Biogas Council

BREWSTER, NEW YORK (September 20, 2011) – Turning Earth, LLC is pleased to announce that Amy McCrae Kessler, Executive Vice President and Head of Legal and Regulatory Affairs at Turning Earth has been re-elected to the Board of Directors of the American Biogas Council (the “ABC”).

The ABC is the first industry association in the United States dedicated to the development of anaerobic digestion (“AD”) technologies and to the promotion of production and use of biogas. Member companies span the biogas value chain and include biogas project developers, landowners, anaerobic digestion and biogas technology vendors, engineering and law firms, wastewater treatment companies, utilities and academic institutions. ABC actively advocates for the growth of the biogas industry at the federal and state levels. More information on the ABC can be found at www.americanbiogascouncil.org.

Ms. Kessler said, “It has been a pleasure to work with fellow ABC Directors, members and staff to advance the ABC’s goals and objectives over this past year. We’ve experienced tremendous growth, adding over 100 new members, which is testament to the impressive potential of the biogas industry in the U.S. It was particularly rewarding to lead ABC’s effort to launch a robust federal government relations program to raise the profile of biogas and to advocate for incentive parity with other forms of renewable energy. The program has been a great success and I look forward to its continued growth. I am delighted to return to the Board for another term and I anticipate another impressive year of accomplishments for the organization. Look for the ABC to role out an enhanced state level government relations program among other important initiatives. The biogas industry in the U.S. is at an inflection point and will play an increasingly significant role in how we manage organic waste streams and generate renewable energy. ABC is forging new relationships and opening market doors to speed the path for the industry.”
